ON THE SANDS.

A boundless sea and endless sky,
The long white billow shoreward flung,
And you and I—just you and I—
When life and love and sweet things were young.

Not a sail in sight, not a living thing
Aster, nor near us—the moon hung
A silver hammock where elves might swing—
When you and I and the world were young.

Was it ages gone, or but yesterday?
Were we the first whose warm lips clung,
The first who met for love's dear delight,
When the sad old earth was glad and young?

Sea and sky and the sands imperiled
With starry shells from the soft foam swung,
And you and I—but we made the world,
When love and hope and sweet life were young!

A MAN TIGER.

BY CHARLES B. LEWIS.

We were encamped on the banks of the Chumbar river, on the east side of the Chitro hills, India. It was a government party, in charge of Captain Jordan, a military engineer. The object was to see if the river could be tapped and a canal constructed to run the waters across the flat country to the east for irrigation purposes. There were two English soldiers and a party of 20 natives detailed with the captain, and two English officers and myself were the surveyors and hunting party combined. There was plenty of game in the Chitro hills, and Captain Jordan was a veteran hunter as well as a prominent engineer.

We had not yet got settled in camp when the natives appeared to tell us some queer stories regarding a tiger which had lately made his appearance in the neighborhood. No one had ever seen his like. In the next, as they declared, he had more the face of a human being than of a tiger. Again, he had been encountered, face to face, by several natives, but instead of attacking them had contented himself with a look and then walked off. On one occasion he had entered a village and had approached an old man who was cooking his supper at a fire. His presence was not discovered until he rubbed his nose against the old man's shoulder and emitted a sound like the purring of a cat. Dumb and helpless with terror, the natives waited to be attacked, but after walking around the fire two or three times the beast went off into the thick jungle. This old man stoutly declared that the tiger had the face of a man and that it seemed to desire speech with him. The beast had been roaming about for three weeks when we got there, but in all that time had not attacked a native nor killed an animal belonging to the village.

The natives of India are not only superstitious to the last degree, but to the grossest expectation in all their statements, and their declarations in this case were taken with many grains of allowance. As a rule they are very anxious to get rid of their dangerous neighbors, but in this case they believed us not to harm the tiger. The soul of some good man, native or white, had taken possession of the beast, and for that reason he had spared the villagers and should be spared in turn. To kill him would be sacrilege, and in revenge a man eater would be sent to depopulate the village.

It was four days after the natives had come before we got sight of the man tiger. Captain Jordan had begun his preliminary work, and one day when he was on the bank of the river, half a mile below camp, I took my gun to join him and get a shot at some wild swans which had passed down the stream. Thus far we had hunted only small game and had heard nothing further from the tiger. The sun shone brightly in a cloudless sky, and the weather was hot, and I knew enough of the tiger's habits to be sure that he would be lying up in some cool spot during the heat of the day. I heard the captain shouting to his assistants long before I got to him. They had crossed the river on a raft, and he was alone. Just before I reached him I struck into a path used by the wild animals as they came down from the hills to drink. Forty feet away I caught sight of the officer standing behind his surveying instrument, and at the same instant my eyes fell upon a tiger creeping along the path between us. For a few seconds I believed the creature to be a dog. Then as I fully realized what it was and that he was unharmed, I stood stock still and gazed at him. I had only a shotgun, loaded with swan shot, but the action of the beast was so singular that I forgot I was armed at all. While I continued gazing at him he crept forward to the captain's feet and lay down and rolled over on his side.

All of a sudden and without realizing what I was doing I uttered a shout. In turning the captain stumbled over the tiger and pitched forward, and with a sort of yelp, the beast sprang away into the bushes. Though the officer got a full view of the creature it was hard for him to believe that things had occurred as they had. As the tiger had not been disturbed by me it was a source of wonder why he had not attacked the officer. When the natives came to hear of it, they asserted with great earnestness that the soul of some friend of the captain had passed into the beast and that the tiger had heard of his presence and came to welcome him. This was absurd, of course, but nevertheless we had to admit that there was something very singular about the matter.

Three evenings later we sat at the door of the mess tent and smoked and talked after the evening meal. It was a bright moonlight evening, and we could see almost as well as at noon. By and by Captain Jordan rose up and started down to his horse, 200 feet away, and we were following him with our eyes, when a tiger sprang out of a hollow where it had been crouching and seized him and rushed away to the thicket. The thing transpired so quickly that it was 15 seconds before one of us moved. As we sprang to our feet we asked each other if we had seen a tiger. The officer uttered no cry and the beast did not even snarl. The man was seized by the left hip, given a twist, and most of his body seemed to be on the tiger's back as the beast galloped away. Before one of us could seize a rifle the beast and his victim had disappeared into the brush, which came within 200 feet of our tents. We set up a great shouting and fired our guns, hoping to frighten the tiger, and as soon as lanterns could be lighted we pushed our way into the jungle, but the case was hopeless from the start. The tiger had crept across a clear piece of ground for a distance of 100 feet to reach the hollow. The moonlight was so strong that some of us thought to have seen him, but as a matter of fact his presence was not even suspected until the captain's horse scented him and began to cut up.

What happened to the captain we heard from his own lips next afternoon. The facts in the case were published in many Indian and English journals at the time, and strange as they were no one ventured to dispute them. Next morning we assembled 200 natives and beat up the country for miles around, hoping to at least find the half devoured body and give it burial. Not a trace of it could be found, nor was the tiger seen. When Captain Jordan was seized, the action was so sudden that it was half a minute before he realized the situation. The tiger's teeth did not grip the flesh at all, but only the clothing. The officer's arms were free, and he had a pistol he could have made use of. Clinging the tiger with his right arm, his left hand hung down, and as soon as the thicket was reached he grasped at the bushes to delay progress. In this way he checked the pace considerably until he had reached the edge of the thicket. He heard our shouts and the report of firearms, but had no hope of escape. He was carried a distance of two miles and a half, and at the end of it the tiger scrambled up a steep rocky hill to a mass of rocks on the crest. These rocks were surrounded by a dense jungle, and in forcing a way through it the tiger's face was badly hurt by the bushes. He had planned to make a fight for his life when the tiger dropped him, but the beast acted so queerly that he changed his mind. There was no growling, no sign of anger. The tiger let go of him to back off and sit up on his haunches and whine and whimper and look at him in a queer way. Just at that spot the officer caught sight of the tiger's face, and he saw pretty plainly, and he was amazed to discover that the tiger had almost a human face. Not only that, but it was the face of a native servant who had been with him for years, but who was bitten by a cobra several years before and lost his life in saving that of his master.

So impressed was Captain Jordan with this wonderful resemblance that he called the name of his servant aloud. As he did so the tiger frowned upon him with every evidence of affection and carefully licked the blood off his face. When the officer sat up, the tiger rubbed its head against him and purred like a cat and seemed highly delighted to have its fur stroked. The queer conduct of the beast was a great puzzle to the officer, as you may well believe. Instead of being eaten alive he was being toyed with. It was a full hour before he dared hope that he was really to be spared. During the night he sat with his back to a rock, the tiger lying beside him, and every sound from camp came up to him on the stillness of the night. What daylight would bring he did not know. When it came, the tiger sat up and yawned and looked about. Then it licked his face and hands, rubbed his shoulder and finally slipped away into the jungle. In his report of the adventure Captain Jordan said the tiger bore such a wonderful resemblance to that of his old servant that he thought himself dreaming. This he thought himself, of course, only in a general way. When the tiger left him, he did not know exactly what to do. He feared if he attempted to depart the beast would return and attack him, and he therefore remained quiet.

After an hour the tiger reappeared, having evidently been drunk, and he lay down beside the captain, and both slept until mid-afternoon. The tiger fondled the man again, looked him in the face for a long time, and finally whined and whimpered and went off. Ten minutes after he disappeared the captain rose up and started for camp, which he reached in less than an hour. His appearance struck us dumb for the moment. We scoffed at his story, but he took the whole party to the spot where he had been held captive. It was hard to swallow his statements, but I am satisfied that he did not exaggerate in the slightest. Two days after his escape the tiger was found dead not far from camp, and then all of us had a look at his face. Its resemblance to that of a native was indeed wonderful. Photographs were taken, and when the face was put in a group with four or five natives no one could detect it as that of a tiger. It was a queer thing, taken all around, but I have given you the details just as I got them, and you must figure them out for yourself.

On the Verge of Ruin.

The riderpest and the drought, it is said, have brought the Orange Free State to the verge of ruin. The drought has lasted for ten months and still continues. A cabbage is sold for a shilling, and there is no meat except the carcasses of wounded wagon bullocks. Business is being wound up all over the place, and trade is almost at a standstill.

INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, AUGUST 27, 1898.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC CO AND THE FORTHCOMING ELECTION.

The candidate, whether he be Republican or Democrat, who expects to win in the forthcoming State election, must be free from the imputation that the Southern Pacific Company would be benefited by his election.

It is a well known fact that at one time candidates were anxious to have it known that they were friendly to the corporation whose growth meant the advancement and development of the resources of this great State. Times have changed. What was once a good thing for the State of California has come to be a bad thing. This corporation fattened on the people; its treasury swelled. Instead of keeping in its own proper sphere—the conduct of a great business—it stepped into the political arena and by the lavish use of its wealth prostituted the Legislature of this State, defied the laws and trampled on the rights of its citizens. This condition has existed for some years. The people have been unable to do what they would. The Supreme Court of the State has been under the control of this corporation. The Congress of the United States has been defiled by its machinations. Indeed, much of the disputes into which our public life has fallen is traceable directly to the dishonest use which the Southern Pacific Company has made of the wealth which the fruitful acres and rich mines of California have poured into its coffers. The people as a whole have come to believe this and as a whole they make demand that the officers of this State shall be without the influence of the Southern Pacific Company. The voters in both parties expect and demand that their leaders shall be entirely free from any taint of association with the treasury of the Southern Pacific.

LIGHT AND WATER.

NEXT week Sonoma will be lighted by electricity, thanks to the efforts of Fred. T. Duhring, Julius Fochetti, C. F. Leiding, S. Ciucci, F. Clewe, C. Aguilon, J. Chelini, H. H. Granice, the incorporators of the company, and those enterprising citizens who have subscribed to take lights. The City Trustees will meet in adjourned session next Wednesday evening to discuss the proposition of lighting the streets with incandescent or arc lights and also to pass Ordinance No. 60, the second of the series of water ordinances having for their purpose the bonding of the town for a municipal system of water works. The water proposition will be submitted to the voters about the middle of October. Of course it will be bitterly opposed by Robert Poppe and his fellow silurians in this town, who are opposed to water, light and every other public improvement in Sonoma.

The nomination by the Republican State Convention of E. P. Colgan for State Controller was a fitting compliment to an honest, tried and faithful public servant. The INDEX-TRIBUNE does not take any one's say-so for this assertion. We know the man and know what we are talking about. Mr. Colgan has twice been nominated and elected to the same position of public trust. He is one of the strongest men on the ticket, and it goes without saying that he will be triumphantly elected this Fall.

Big Price for a Broken Heart.

Not long since a Danville, Ill., jury ordered the male defendant in a breach of promise case to pay the competent sum of $54,333.33 to the afflicted fair one. Though it is a pretty high estimate of blighting affection, there is another estimate which, if not in dollars and cents exactly as high, yet in general consideration of excellence reaches as lofty an altitude. This is the estimate of the people as to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy for constipation. The action of this gentle but effective laxative is never accompanied by the griping so marked in the operation of most cathartics. It is an incomparable remedy for any preventive of malarial, rheumatic and kidney complaints, and a promoter of appetite and sleep.

COUNTY HAPPENINGS.

William Lowrey, a pioneer farmer, died at the residence of B. F. Hoar, near Penn's Grove, on Sunday. Paralysis and old age brought on his death. He was a native of Indiana, aged seventy-two years. The funeral took place Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the Hoar residence and the interment was at Spring Hill Cemetery, on the Freestone road.

Chris. Nicklas, proprietor of the Oak Lawn House at the depot, says the Healdsburg Tribune, committed suicide Wednesday afternoon about 5 o'clock. He had been drinking heavily for several days, but attended to business on Wednesday as usual. About the hour named he was missed, and after a short search his body was found in a small room suspended from a nail by a bale rope. Doctors were summoned and they worked hard to resuscitate him, but without avail.

Early Tuesday morning a man who gave his name as N. G. Bryant was found in a state of semi-consciousness in the vicinity of Chinatown. He was taken to the police station and locked up. According to Bryant's story his home is at San Jose and he came to Sonoma county to pick hops, being camped with two companions on the banks of Santa Rosa Creek. Marshal Griggs found on Bryant's person three checks drawn on San Jose banks signed by Mrs. H. E. Bryant and representing a value of $1,542. The possession of the checks and the man's condition excited suspicion and some telegraphing was done by the Marshal. The replies from San Jose being satisfactory Mr. Bryant was sent on his way rejoicing. Santa Rosa Republican.

On Saturday morning last Frank T. Maynard, the well known pioneer citizen of Petaluma, passed away at his home there. After months of suffering he had a sudden relapse Friday night. He was a native of Connecticut and was born on April 26th, 1823. He came to this State in 1849. He, in company with four partners, brought out the large frame hotel from Baltimore known as the "Graham House," which they erected on the corner of Pacific and Kearney streets, and in 1850 sold it to the city of San Francisco for $150,000 for use as a City Hall. The deceased leaves a widow and three children, Harry H. Maynard, Mrs. J. F. Fairbanks and Mrs. F. Nelson. By his request his remains will not be buried for three days. The funeral was held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Does Baby Thrive?

If your baby is delicate and sickly and its food does not nourish it, put fifteen or twenty drops of Scott's Emulsion in its bottle three or four times a day and you will see a marked change.

We have had abundant proof that they will thrive on this emulsion when other food fails to nourish them.

It is the same with larger children that are delicate. Scott's Emulsion seems to be the element lacking in their food. Do not fail to try it if your children do not thrive. It is as useful for them in summer as in winter.

Ask your doctor if this is not true.

All Medicines Failed Except Hood's Sarsaparilla

Improved with the First Dose—Now Entirely Well.

Malaria is caused by bad air, bad water, bad drainage, which make bad blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures malaria by purifying the blood. Read this interesting statement:

"I was confined to my bed with malaria. I could not take strong medicines, owing to my condition, and everything I took failed to help me. At last I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking it a short time the malaria was entirely gone and I have never had it since. I began to improve with the very first dose of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now strong and well." Mrs. A. M. ## LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Duhring has made a big cut on flour. He is now selling Port Costa at $1.10 and Oregon at $1.00 per sack.

The case of the People vs. Richard Lachmann, which was to have been tried in Santa Rosa this week, has been postponed until next Monday.

Rev. Richard Kimball Ham will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational Church on next Sunday, the 28th inst. Mr. Ham is a young gentleman of pleasing manner and his experience has already been such that the young people of Sonoma are sure to enjoy the day and it is certain that his message will deserve attention.

W. F. Bean and a crew of men have been at work the past week boring for artesian water in Lovell Valley. This valley is rented from the Johnson estate by J. B. Chase, who has a large number of fast brood mares pastured there. Owing to the dry winter water in the mountains east of town is very scarce and it has become necessary to bore artesian wells to supply the stock.

Last night was a memorable one for the Schellville Base Ball Club, as it was the occasion of its grand ball. Union Hall was prettily decorated by the young ladies of Schellville and with good music and a jolly crowd the affair was a success in every way. The floor was under the management of H. Bates and O. Frisbie, who reflected credit upon themselves as well as the club.

The Sonoma Electric Light Company will start up its plant next Monday. Nearly every business house in town has been wired and will replace coal oil with incandescent electric lights. Many private dwellings, the Catholic Church and the Convent School have also been wired. Wires are to be placed in the Union Hotel and the Methodist Church in the near future.

Dr. Hinkle, the founder of The National Surgical Institute, 319 Bush street, San Francisco, will be at the principal hotel in Sonoma on Friday, September 9th, for the purpose of examining cases for this institute, which with its branches has cured more cases of Cripples, Paralysis, Piles, Fistula, Club feet, and Hip and Knee Joint diseases than any other similar institute in the United States.

"Scenes of Early Days" is the title of a new book just issued from the press. The book embraces a series of exciting and truthful narratives from the pen of the publisher, C. H. Crawford of Petaluma, who crossed the Plains in 1851. The book is printed in clear, plain type and numbers 186 pages and should find a place in the library of every Native Son in the State. The price is 75c, prepaid, and can be had by addressing C. H. Crawford, Petaluma.

The result of allowing cows to loiter on our streets while being driven to and from pasture was manifested last Tuesday evening on Napa street when two little girls were run into by a frightened bovine, narrowly escaping serious injury. As it was one of the little tots received a gash on the forehead and the other was more or less bruised. It is also about time certain of our citizens cease using our streets and Plaza as a turkey ranch.

A special dispatch received at Camp Barrett last Sunday night from Washington brought the unwelcome news that no more troops would be sent to Manila. Orders were also received by General Merriam to have King's detachment overtaken and held at Manila. This news was received with great disgust by the boys of Company C, in which there are several Sonomites, among them being Geo. Foutts, Geo. Cozine, Walter Murphy, Perry Ferris and Harry Knight, who enlisted in the Alameda company.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

A HARMONIOUS MEETING AT SANTA ROSA MONDAY.

Nominate Candidates for the County Offices and Prepare for the Campaign.

The Democratic County Nominating Convention was held in Ridgway Hall, Santa Rosa, last Monday. It was the most harmonious political gathering ever held by Democrats in this county. Although the delegates present numbered but 122 there was no lack of interest and the contingents from the different parts of the county cast solid ballots for their favorite men.

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock by Ben. S. Wood, Chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee, and E. E. Drees of Petaluma was elected as temporary Chairman, with C. A. Pool of Windsor, August Domine of Cloverdale and Major L. W. Julliard as Secretaries.

Upon motion the following committees were appointed, after which an adjournment was taken until 1 o'clock:

Credentials—Robt. Howe, Sonoma, Chairman; L. L. Jewett, Guerneville; George H. Black, Cloverdale; James McKenna, Valley Ford; George N. Sanborn, Sebastopol.

Platform—J. T. Coffman, Healdsburg, Chairman; J. R. Leppo, Santa Rosa; A. Cereghino, Petaluma; Andrew Ducker, Valley Ford; F. B. Glynn, Occidental.

Order of Business—H. H. Payne, Healdsburg, Chairman; John O'Hara, Penn's Grove; Harrison Finley, Santa Rosa; Thos. Markham, Santa Rosa; Christian Stengel, Fisherman's Bay.

Immediately after the convention being called to order after the noon recess the committees made their reports and the temporary officers were selected as permanent officers.

The next business taken up was the nominating of candidates for the county offices. All speeches were limited to five minutes. All nominations were made unanimous and the best of feeling prevailed. Following is the ticket as nominated:

Sheriff—Frank P. Grace of Santa Rosa.

County Clerk—August F. Domine of Cloverdale.

District Attorney—T. J. Butts of Santa Rosa.

Auditor and Recorder—F. L. Wright of Guerneville.

Assessor—Frank E. Dowd of Lakeville.

Surveyor—O. C. Huebner of Healdsburg.

Superintendent of Schools—Miss Minnie Coulter of Santa Rosa.

Treasurer—M. D. Goshen of Petaluma.

Coroner—S. Hilgerloh of Healdsburg.

State Senator—W. J. Hotchkiss of Windsor.

Assemblyman Sixteenth District—E. C. Hinchshaw of Bloomfield.

Assemblyman Seventeenth District—W. F. Cowan of Santa Rosa.

Supervisor Second District—Gallant Rains of Petaluma.

Supervisor Fourth District—Joseph A. M'inn of Geyserville.

The Sonoma Township officers nominated were Jas. B. Gibson for Justice of the Peace and G. W. Beatty for Constable.

Political Announcements.

In another column under the head of Political Cards the announcement of Sheridan Peterson, candidate for Assemblyman from the Seventeenth District, appears for the first time. Mr. Peterson is a man who needs no recommendation, as he was raised in this county and is one of the largest hog growers in Northern California.

The cards of Deputy Sheriff C. H. Ohm and G. W. Beatty, the Republican and Democratic candidates for Constable of Sonoma Township, also appear in this issue. Both men have been officers of the law for years and have established enviable reputations for running down and arresting law-breakers.

Killed a Four-Pointer Buck.

A hunting party composed of Billy Myers, Sol. Carriger, Billy Fowler and Fred. Carriger arrived in town Thursday after a day's hunt for deer in the mountains west of town. Billy Myers, who had a stand near the Fowler Creek falls, espied a four-pointer buck which was making directly toward him and when within easy shooting distance he brought the noble animal down with a shot between the left shoulder. The buck weighed 120 pounds.

REPUBLICAN TOWNSHIP NOMINATIONS.

J. M. Cheney for Justice and Chas. H. Ohm for Constable.

The delegates elected to represent Sonoma Township at the recent Republican Convention at Cloverdale met in the pavilion last Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the purpose of nominating township officers—one Justice of the Peace and one Constable.

The entire fifteen delegates representing Glen Ellen, Agua Caliente, Sonoma and San Luis were present and each delegation was determined to stand by its candidates.

Immediately after the meeting being called to order by Chairman B. F. Campbell, Granville Harris placed J. M. Cheney in nomination for Justice of the Peace and as there was no opposition he was chosen by acclamation.

The only nomination contested was for that of Constable, there being four candidates in the field, to-wit: Chas. Weise, Jno. Wagon, J. E. Robin and Chas. Ohm.

It was agreed that after the third ballot the name receiving the lowest number of votes should be dropped. Jno. Wagon was the first to be declared out of the contest and on the fifth ballot J. E. Robin was dropped. The voting was then between Chas. Weise of Glen Ellen and Chas. Ohm of Schellville. The former received 64 votes and the latter 84 votes.

Jim Shaw Heard From.

Jas. Shaw, who left Kenwood several months ago for the gold fields of the frozen north, has been heard from. After reaching his destination Mr. Shaw was taken ill and has been unable to leave the vessel, which is anchored in Kotzebue Sound. His companions have gone inland and are prospecting for gold on an unknown river.

Off for Another Deer Hunt.

Carl Dresel, Jim Pieratt, J. Kerridge and several other well-known local deer hunters passed through town Thursday with guns and hounds bound for the summit of the Sonoma mountains. They will make their headquarters at the Whitney ranch. As they killed several bucks on the occasion of their last hunt in the same locality a couple of weeks ago they expect to be equally successful on this occasion.

Expert Bicycle Repairer.

Wm. G. Obenauer, the expert wheelman of San Rafael, will visit Sonoma in the near future. He is one of the most expert repairers of bicycles on the coast and has a large establishment in San Rafael.

He is reaching out for the repair trade of Sonoma Valley, much of which is sent to San Francisco at an increased cost for both express and repairing. See his ad in another column.

"There is so much trouble coming into the world," said Lord Bolingbroke, "and so much more is going out of it, that it is hardly worth while to be here at all."

If a man and a philosopher conclude, what must be the natural conclusion of suffering women who undergo untold torture in bringing their babes into the world?

Philosophy of this kind is based upon gross ignorance. The fact is, that there is no necessity for the severe pains undergone by the average woman. If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the majority of women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can always be remedied. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sure, speedy and permanent cure for all disorders of this description. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic. It banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have of late testified to various merits. Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good."

"I suffered fourteen years," writes Mrs. Mary J. Stewart, of Box 46, Saratoga, Santa Clara Co., Cal., with female weakness, nervousness and general debility. I tried everything to no avail. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and "Golden Medical Discovery" cured me."

The names, addresses and photographs of hundreds of women cured by Dr. Pierce's medicines are printed by permission in the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It's free. For a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only. French cloth binding at stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Every woman needs a great medical book. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser fills this want. It contains over 1000 pages and nearly 800 illustrations.

On entering the house the first thing to attract the eye was the happy words "Welcome Home," with Old Glory floating over them. The gathering was a most enjoyable one and the evening was closed by a brilliant display of fire works.

"JACK."

There's more than instinct in the fabled play of "Jack," the little boy, dear as a child. Also, that arrogance has so misty-eyed the intelligence of brutes and said them may be no surprise law such as man has fled. Against them, I could well be reconciled. To share with all of them a judgment day and life eternal. Not a blasphemous thought (Witness, O Thou, who knowest not I'm mine). But this dog's life, so innocent, is fraught with intimations of such high design. That I could wish we never had been taught to think man only holds the spark divine. —John H. Borer in Century.

A TON OF GOLD.

BY CHARLES D. LEWIS.

If you have an atlas handy, you will see that the San Jose river, New Mexico, rises to the west of the Sierra Madre mountains and cuts through the rugged range to join the Rio Grande 100 miles away. The San Jose valley lies on either side of the stream for a distance of 50 miles, and is from one to 20 miles wide. To the north of the valley lie the San Juan mountains, which are part and portion of the Sierra Madre. At Jemez, which is the only settlement for 50 miles in any direction, and which of itself is only a hamlet, you will find a dozen people who can relate the story of "The Ton of Gold."

Away back in the fifties three Mexican prospectors and miners left Santa Fe, which was then little more than a trading post, and penetrated into the San Juan mountains. The Indians were hostile and watchful, bears and mountain lions ready to attack the men were in, and for several months the men were in hourly peril of their lives. In the lastness of the mountains they discovered a cave, and the stories told about this cave have sent at least a score of Americans to their death. Only one of the three miners returned to Santa Fe. In the year 1869 an American named Cushman, who had been stopping at Jemez for some time and who had heard the stories and sifted them, entered the mountains in company with two other Americans whose names I do not recall. They were well armed and equipped, and had planned for a thorough search. A hundred different people knew of their setting out, for they made no secret of the expedition. A month after they entered the mountains they were seen at a distance by some hunters, but they never returned. When a year had passed away, it came to be believed that they had fallen victims to the Indians, and as far as I know no search was made for them. From 1869 to 1875 no expedition started out. The story of "The Ton of Gold" has become legendary and was told with so many variations that one found it hard to arrive at the truth.

It was in June, 1875, that Major Jack Williams, who had been serving with the cavalry in the Indian campaigns for years, resigned his commission and organized what was known as "the Williams expedition," with headquarters at Jemez. There were ten men in the expedition, and each furnished his own outfit and contributed $50 to the general purse. We were to share alike in whatever was found. Each man provided himself with a Winchester rifle and 200 pounds of cartridges, blankets, etc. We took with us five mules, which were loaded with provisions, and it was agreed that the search should continue until six men out of the ten voted to abandon it. We were strong enough to take care of ourselves against the Indians, and at least half of the party were veterans of the Indian wars. Every one who had talked with the Mexican who came out with the gold had been questioned over and over again, and with us was the man who had accompanied the Payne expedition and returned with his chief. If we failed to find the stream and the cave and bring out the gold, then no other hand of men need try.

Had the Indians who made their home in the foothills and the fastnesses of the mountains been at peace with mankind the natural difficulties which beset us would have been hard enough to overcome, but we were beset by the hostiles almost from the outset. They were the remnant of a band of renegade Apaches who had never made peace and could never be induced to, and they were firm in their determination to keep both Americans and Mexicans out of the San Juan mountains. The range was their home and their stronghold and they also knew of the gold and gathered more or less of it. On the second day out of Jemez, before we were fairly in the mountains, we were suddenly attacked by about 50 Indians, armed with bows and arrows.

Fortunately we were not taken entirely by surprise and had a strong position, and after a fight of two hours, during which we killed and wounded nine or ten of them, they drew off and let us pass on. From all accounts the expedition which had preceded us had entered the range of mountains from the south, traveled a distance of 50 or 60 miles right into the heart of the mountains and had found the creek in a particularly wild and rugged section. But for the pack animals we could of course have got along much faster, but it had been determined that they should accompany us, and in aiding them along our progress, sometimes did not exceed five miles per day. While the Indians did not attack in a body again small parties of two or three constantly harassed us, and at the end of the fifth day we had two men wounded by their arrows and one of the mules killed outright. If return we had killed or wounded four or five more Indians.

We were 13 days penetrating to the spot which all agreed answered in a general way to the description of the locality where the gold had been found. It was a sink, or basin, in the heart of the range, which might have been the crater of a volcano hundreds of years ago. It was a spot cut up with deep, dark canyons, with immense boulders strewn about, and through the center of it, running east and west, was a small creek. Here and there one could easily get down to the water, but in other places it flowed through rocky canyons, with banks rising up like walls to a height of 300 feet. The basin was about half a mile square, and in the center of it was a level spot about an acre in extent, on which we made our camp. To find the cave, if there was one, we must make a systematic search of the entire basin. As soon as camp had been made our force was divided—a part to search for the mine of gold and a part to prospect the mountain stream for nuggets. It was three days before a find of any importance was made, and then, in the basin at the foot of a waterfall about 100 feet high, the party working the creek took out five pounds of nuggets in half a day. At the bottom of this basin, which was not over three feet deep, they also found a skeleton of a man—a victim of one of the previous expeditions. Here and there a stray nugget was picked out of the stream as the searchers followed it up and down, but no more rich finds were made. In the four weeks we were encamped in the basin we gathered eight pounds of nuggets and nothing was left behind.

There were three of us in the party searching for the cave, and for the first week we kept together on account of the Indians. We divided the basin into districts and went carefully over each, but met with no luck. After the first week we separated, and each man searched as his judgment dictated. By the end of the second week, however, we had made certain that there was no cave in any of the cliffs or canyons in or about the basin. There were evidences of several landslides, and we had about come to the conclusion that one of these had covered the mouth of the cave when adventure discovered it and accident lost it to us and to all others forever.

As the three of us started out on a certain morning I crossed the basin to explore the country to the north. I was a mile and a half from camp, and at the mouth of a narrow gorge, up which I was peering, when an Indian arrow whizzed past my face and struck a great rock and fell at my feet. Before I had recovered my wits a second arrow grazed my shoulder and as it struck the rock I started up the gorge for shelter. Along the right hand side was a narrow shelf and as I hugged the bank for shelter I ascended this shelf and soon found myself 30 feet above the bottom of the gorge and at the entrance of a cave. As the yells of the Indians proved that they were in pursuit, I entered the cave simply with the idea of securing shelter. If the Indians knew of it, one of their number did a very foolish thing. He came bounding along in his tracks with a tomahawk in his hand, and I fired and rolled him into the gorge just as he had got a glimpse of the mouth of the cave. That settled direct pursuit, but the Indians had me penned up and knew it. At least two of them came up the gorge, and, climbing up behind the rocks on the left hand bank, they fired upon me with arrows until I was driven into the cave for shelter. It was then that I set fire to a heap of leaves and dead branches, which I kicked together, and saw the sights which had met the eyes of the Mexican who had been hung. There was a heap of bones and there was the ton of gold.

In my amazement and exultation I forgot the Indians outside for a long quarter of an hour. In that heap of gold were nuggets hardly larger than a bean, and there were others larger than my fist. It had taken two or three months or years to gather that heap from the creek, and they had not taken away a single nugget. Death had come to them, how I cannot say, with riches within arm's length.

I took from the heap an almost solid mass of gold weighing 70 ounces, and after a brief look around on reaching the mouth of the cave I started down the ledge or shelf on a run. The finding of that great heap of wealth had made me reckless, and my sole aim was to reach camp and break the news. I was fired upon as I ran, but not pursued. I think that three or four of the Indians had worked up the mountain above the mouth of the cave, with intent to precipitate a landslide and bury me, but they could not have had time to accomplish anything when from other causes a slide occurred. It began away up the mountain side and took in a space about 200 feet wide. Trees, bushes, boulders and dirt went sliding down with a roaring and a crashing, and mayhap the Indians were caught with it. At any rate, when I reached at camp and returned with four of our party we heard nothing from redskins. I had run up a narrow gorge. There was no gorge now. Tens of thousands of tons of debris had come down to fill up the gorge to a level, and to get at the mouth of that cave one would have had to get through 100 feet of the fill. Man had gathered the treasure to his nature and back to nature it went for safe keeping. Some day man may go there with machinery and find a way to remove the obstruction, but the ton of gold is safe from the miner with his pick and shovel. We did not make a bad thing of our enterprise, by any means, but we just missed making such a good thing of it that none of the party could ever feel quite satisfied.
